Twenty-second Annual Report of Agricultural Experiment Station of University of Wisconsin Just Issued.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., June 19.—Interest in the problems of agriculture and in the progress of the agricultural experiment station of the University of Wisconsin is presented in the twenty-second annual report of the station, a volume of 400 pages, giving detailed and accurate accounts of the work done in the various departments of research and experiment. Over seventy photographs taken on the farms of the agricultural college and in various parts of the state where experiments have been conducted, accompany the reports in illustration of methods used and results obtained. Food values for horses, cattle, and swine have been given close attention, as have also the varied problems which arise in connection with the breeding and care of such animals. Dairy herds and their products, with special attention to the Swiss cheese industry; soil studies; tree pests; breeding and fertilizing grains and forage plants; and tests of sugar beets of the station, who now number twenty-nine.

In connection with swine raising and fattening special attention was given to the comparative values of cottonseed meal, whole corn, and corn meal, and of soy beans and wheat middlings as supplementary feeds. The value of grain rations in fattening weaners, the production of winter lambs, winter exercise for young weaners, and rations for lambs are given full discussion. Photographs of the new additions to the university dairy herd, discussions of the food value of dried beef pulp and of the addition of salt to rations, of the influence of dehorning and tuberculin tests on milk yield, and a report of the official tests of dairy cows are presented in interesting form in the annual report. One hundred pages are given to the cheese and butter industry and its problems. The bacteriological, horticultural, and horse-breeding departments also have full reports.

In carrying on these investigations and in obtaining important results the Agricultural Experiment Association, with its membership of nearly 700 students in the agricultural college of the university, has been a powerful ally of the experiment station giving the station immediate and close connection with all parts of the state. The members of the association carry out upon their farms experiments suggested and directed by the station officers, and report the results.

VIRGINIA TOBACCO MARKET ALSO BARE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, D. C., June 19.—Nearly all of the tobacco raised last year in the Virginia tobacco regions has been marketed and consequently small quantities of the old leaf are on the markets at present. The recent heavy rains made possible the transplanting of a greater portion of the new crop.

It is estimated that only five per cent of the old crop remains to be sold on the Petersburg, Va., market. What little tobacco that has been disposed of lately has brought satisfactory prices. Most of this season's crop has been planted out. In a number of counties adjacent to this town the farmers have abandoned the raising of tobacco and have taken up the cultivation of peanuts, believing there is more money in the latter business than in the former.

The receipts of tobacco at South Boston, Va., have been confined to a few wagonloads. All indications point to an average crop for this year, though labor is scarce. The work of rebuilding the Edmondson warehouses which were destroyed by fire last week, has commenced and the belief is expressed that they will be completed in time for the reception of this year's crop.

SAYS THAT EUNSON TRIED TO HIT HIM

Officer Bear Is Credited With Statement in Defense of His Action.
Friday Night.

Charles Eunson, who had his head broken by a policeman's club Friday evening, continues to improve at the Palmer hospital. He is unable, however, to see anyone as yet. Officer Robert Bear is credited with the statement that the blow was provoked by efforts on the part of Eunson to strike him; that the man had made threats to "do him" as far back as last fall; that he had an open jackknife in his outside coat-pocket at the time the chastisement was administered; that the arrest was made at W. W. Woodring's store on South River street on complaint of Mr. Woodring that Eunson had been applying vile and opprobrious epithets to him in the presence of Mrs. Woodring. If necessary, Officer Bear will go before the fire and police commissioners and state his side of the case. It is also said to be his intention to retain Ex-City Attorney Burpee to see that he gets full justice. On the other hand, complaints have been made to City Attorney Maxfield by a number of prominent citizens and he is investigating the case. The latter made an effort to see Eunson yesterday, but the hospital authorities said that he was not yet in condition to discuss the affair with anybody. It is understood that the members of Fire and Police Commission will meet to consider this matter immediately after the return to Janesville of State Veterinarian E. D. Roberts.

Smith Drug Co. Tell How Smokers

Money's Worth."How can one be sure of getting his money's worth in buying a cigar?" asked a Gazette reporter of Mr. Smith of Smith Drug Co."I'll tell you how to be sure. Just buy a Wadsworth Bros' Cigar. This cigar is always the same—a good, honest, satisfying smoke. It is made with a long Havana filler, so that it always burns with a firm, solid ash, the best sign of a good cigar.""The Cigar burns with a fragrance like that of the Carolina perfecto, a some more of those good cigars.'

We pass out the Wadsworth Bros.
Cigar, and they go away happy."Try a Cigar yourself, and see how good it is.There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Sci-

Mrs. JENNIE MURRAY

of Evansville, and her daughter drove 15 miles to Janesville today to secure the services of Dr. F. T. Richards, who they had heard could extract teeth PAINLESSLY.

Mrs. Murray, in speaking to her son, said, "I've had them all out (nine in number) and they DIDN'T HURT A BIT."

He could hardly believe it, but she soberly affirmed that Dr. Richards did the best of any dentist she ever had work for her.

The daughter also had him work for her and she also said that he DIDN'T HURT.

As the old settler said, "Where there's smoke there must be some fire."

Try him yourself for your next dentistry.

German Export Rates

The German railroads give quick transit of goods for export at favored rates. The rates from Plauen to Bremen, American Consul Hurst reports, for export, express, are only 38 cents per 100 pounds for a distance of 315 miles, and to Hamburg 37 cents per 100 for 300 miles. If the goods are not for export, the usual rate for express, taking a longer time, costs nearly three times as much.

PERSONAL PROPERTY THAT IS WORTH A THIRD OF MILLION

Has Been Added to the Tax Rolls by the Five Assessors This Year.

Janesville's five assessors have completed their work both of fixing the valuations of property in the city and equalizing the wards, that is comparing valuations fixed with sales during a period of three years. The average ratio of assessments to sales, according to their findings, are as follows: 77 per cent in the first ward; 77 per cent in the second; 76 1/2 per cent in the third; 76 per cent in the fourth; 76 per cent in the fifth. There has been an enormous gain in the personal property listed. The increase in the first ward amounts to $125,000. This is due in a measure to the raise in the valuation (voluntary) on the part of the concern, itself, of the Janesville Electric Co.'s plant from $35,000 to $120,000. The increase in the second ward is $80,000; in the third, $45,000; in the fourth, $45,000; in the fifth, $34,000. The total is $327,000—nearly a third of a million. The board of review meets on June 25. The assessors hope that every property-holder will make it a point to look up the new valuations of his holdings so that there may be no complaints after the board adjourns. They wish to be credited with honest and painstaking efforts to do the best possible, and the property-holders are the only ones who can point out injustice, if it has been done in any case.

FRED MILKE GOES BACK TO WAUKESHA

Youth Who Was Out on Parole From Industrial School Confessed to Stealing Bicycle.

Some time yesterday a bicycle belonging to G. D. Potter and left in front of O. D. Bates' grocery store was stolen and the police were given a description and asked to keep a look-out for the missing property.

Last night, eighteen-year-old Fred Milke, paroled from the industrial school at Waukesha last August, put in an appearance at the police station and told a heart-rending tale about being driven from his home by a cruel father and asked City Marshal Appleby to write a note to the stern parent requesting him to give shelter and food to the unhappy son.

While the conversation was going on Officer Fanning, approaching the city hall, espied a wheel which had been left outside and was prompted to examine it. When he afterwards entered the station and asked for the owner, the boy acknowledged that he had ridden it thither and said that he had purchased it of a stranger on South Main street. Afterwards, when confronted with the correspondence of the wheel in his possession and the description of the missing property, he confessed that he had stolen it. The superintendent of the industrial school at Waukesha was notified today and said that he would send an officer after the boy. Young Milke had not been home for several days. He seems to be incorrigible.

ILLNESS MAY LEAD TO RECONCILIATION

Ernest Diebler's Former Father-in-Law Relented When He Saw Him Collapse in Court Today.

Ernest C. Diebler was taken to his father-in-law's home in a hack this morning. Though he is alleged to have threatened in letters to shoot both Mr. and Mrs. D. Williams and their daughter, his former wife, if she did not consent to re-marry and live with him again, the young woman's father relented and decided not to prosecute. Diebler was carried into court by Officer Brown and Constable Maxfield. Although he ate a hearty supper last night, slept soundly, and wanted to send out for breakfast this morning because police station fare was not to his liking, he either feigned or was actually overtaken with another "spell," once he was before the bar of justice and rolled off his chair in a seeming complete collapse. Dr. Charles Sutherland was sent for, but found nothing alarming in the man's pulse or temperature, upon his arrival. Judge Field asked Diebler why he threatened to shoot his former wife and lie answered that he had no recollection of ever doing so. The court finally decided to suspend sentence for one week in order to give the prisoner an opportunity to leave town, the idea being that he should stay away and harass his former wife and parents-in-law no more. It is understood that the man's relatives in Berlin are coming after him. It is said that he has been subject to these strange attacks of hysteria ever since an operation for appendicitis was performed some years ago.

Second Base Is Key to Infield

Don't Try to Play the Position Unless You Can Stop Balls on Either Side Under Full Headway. Running Down a Man. Other Valuable Advice.

By NAPOLEON LAJOIE, Captain and second baseman of Cleveland Americans.

Players with long arms make the best second basemen, as they are often able to make stops without slacking their speed and toss the ball to a base for an out.

Unless able to cover a lot of ground and take balls on either side under full headway a player should never try to become a second baseman. I play a deep field and change my distance from the base according to the style of pitching I am backing up. If a weak fielding pitcher, who will allow medium hit balls to go through the box, I play closer to second. Then again you must size up the man at the bat and know the style of ball the pitcher is to feed him. It is always best to go in and meet the ball and smother it if you find it coming with a shoot. I never make up my mind how to take the ball until it is very close, for it may take a jump if you set yourself for the regulation bunt.

It pays to keep on your feet, although at times the spectators have an idea that the man rolling about in the dust is doing the most effective work.

I always have a perfect understanding with the shortstop and catcher as to who will cover the base, and play a bit closer when out for a double play. It is not a bad idea to take your cue from the second baseman after he sends you a ball for a force out. If there is no chance for a double you should hold the ball. A tip to let the ball go will help, as you feel there is a good chance to get the man. In turning to throw, step in front of the base and throw regardless of the man coming down, as he will generally look out for himself and is not anxious to get hit with the ball.

A second baseman should go for short flies and depend on the outfielders for the coaching, as they are in a better position to judge the ball.

The second baseman should go in for the short throw with the catcher, sending the ball down for a man and a runner at third. This play requires practice and a good throwing catcher. When running down a man between bases go after him on the jump, and get him under full headway before throwing the ball.

I instinctively start for the second base as soon as I see the ball hit to the right of me. It pays to be at the bag in time to help the throw from short or third, for a fraction of a second will lose a double play, and nothing is more effective than a fast double play on a ground hit. When taking throws from the catcher to get a base runner coming from first, stand to the left of the base if the throw will allow, as nine out of ten runners will try to go back of the base. Fall back with the ball, as the runners often do phenomenal stunts in getting away from being touched.

Second base gives a player an opportunity to show up better than any other position, as it is truly styled "the key to the infield," and I believe a player will last longer in the game in this position than any other, if he is a natural and not a made ball player.

All the fine team plays of the game are made by first signaling. With a man at third and second, the latter will usually take big ground, especially when his run would win a game. A throw from the catcher would generally be a cue for a clever base runner to go on to third; but in this case he is blocked off by another runner, so that his chances are all in returning to the base. I see the opportunity and tip the catcher to throw the next ball straight to the bag and as soon as the ball is sent in by the pitcher I am on my way to the base to head off the runner. Finding that he is cut off, the runner will start for third base, and I have no trouble in getting the man nearest home. The pitcher must be in on the play and keep the ball white of the batsman.

Fighter Kaufmann.

Billy Delaney's New Pacific Coast "Find" May Meet Gus Ruhlin.

At Kaufmann, the ex-amateur heavy-weight champion of the Pacific coast, who Billy Delaney, the champion miler, says will soon be the heavyweight champion of the world, is now in the east looking for matches. Delaney and the big boxer, but no one, and the chances are that Kaufmann will be looked up for a go with Gus Ruhlin.

Kaufmann is a young giant, with all the attributes that go to make a great fighter. He has speed—marvelous speed—for such a big fellow, can hit blows that crush, and will ring experience, which he is acquiring all the time, will be one of the roughest men in the world to beat.

The fact that Billy Delaney has taken Kaufmann under his wing is an admission that Kaufmann is an all-around fighter.

BILLY DELANEY'S FIGHTING FACE.

Advantage that counts for more than anything else in Kaufmann's favor. Delaney is the only man in the world that ever developed two world's championships, heavyweights. He brought Jim Corbett into the limelight, and when Corbett was beginning to "go back" Delaney brought out Jim Jeffries to wear the crown.

Jeffries was made by Delaney, and the big brawler was one of the first men to give Delaney credit for this.

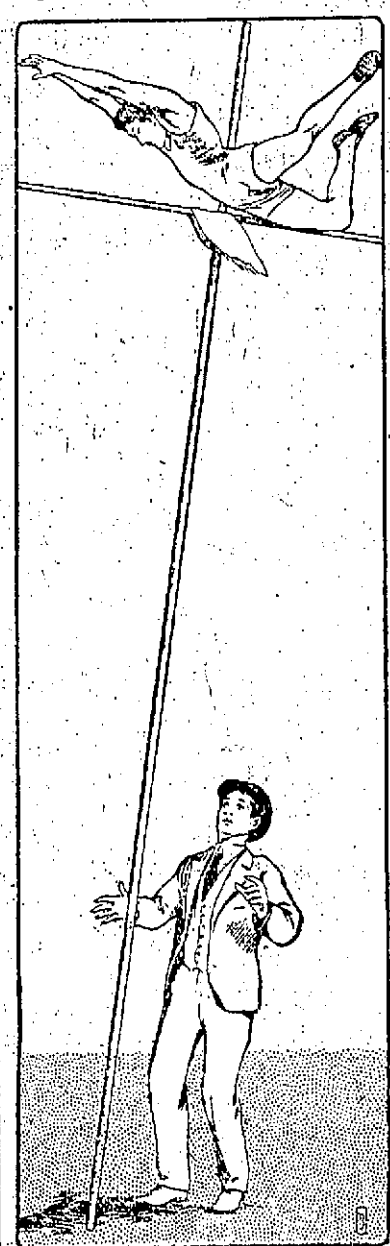

To sporting men Delaney's word that Kaufmann is of championship timber is accepted as final. They know, of course, that Delaney might make a mistake, but defer to his superior wisdom when it comes to picking big fighters.

Kaufmann's only defeat was suffered at the hands of Philadelphia Jack O'Brien. The Quaker boxer, the cleverest fighter in the world today, won through his ring generalship.

Ready For Big Rowing Features

Intercollegiate Meet at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and the Harvard-Yale River Duel at New London, Conn.—Cornell Is Justly the Favorite.

With the intercollegiate rowing and field championships at Boston and the American rowing regatta at Philadelphia now a part of athletic history, the college men are turning their eyes toward the two college regattas which will bring their spring athletic season to an end. June 23 has been set as the date for the Poughkeepsie (N. Y.) regatta, in which Cornell, Pennsylvania, Columbia, Syracuse, Georgetown and Wisconsin will compete. On the Thursday following, June 28, Harvard and Yale will hold their dual regatta at New London on the Thames.

That both of these regattas will be of a higher standard than ever before is evident from the performances which the American rowers have been giving all year. There is every reason to believe that the crews which row at Poughkeepsie will be far more evenly matched than they were a year ago when Cornell triumphed by a clean twenty-two lengths. No better race than that which was fought by Syracuse, Pennsylvania and Georgetown for second place last year could be desired, but the experts do not figure on the Ethiopians gaining such a lead this time.

As has been the case for several years, the Poughkeepsie regatta will attract the greatest interest. There was a time when the Harvard-Yale regatta was the whole show in the aquatic world, but that day has passed. Now the Harvard regatta occupies very much the same relation to the Poughkeepsie regatta that the Harvard-Yale regatta once held.

ELLIS WARD, UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA COACH.

Ellis Ward, coach of the intercollegiate rowing team, says that the Poughkeepsie regatta will be the most interesting of the season. He expects a close race between Cornell and Yale, but believes Cornell is the favorite.

Cornell will be the favorite for the Poughkeepsie regatta until the big race is rowed. The Ethiopians occupy much the same position on the water that Yale does on the gridiron in the east and Michigan in the west. Both are occasionally beaten, at their favorite sport, but their victories far outnumber their defeats. Cornell this year has five members of her 1905 championship eight. The first try out of the Ethiopians had their race with Harvard, and for this they were weakened by the loss of their stroke out, yet they won. The Cornell men have been training with great faithfulness, and, with Charles Courtney's well known record for turning out championship eights, the majority of rowing experts will continue to pick his crew against the field until they lose.

There are two crews this year which threaten serious trouble for Cornell. These are Pennsylvania and Syracuse. The boom in the Quaker stock has been caused by the fact that the Pennsylvanians are the only ones who could defeat the strong Annapolis eight this year. Columbia, Yale and Georgetown each tried its skill against the middies, and all lost. The Quakers, on the other hand, with almost a totally green crew, outrowed the middies from start to finish, and showed a strength that will make them dangerous competitors at Poughkeepsie.

The peculiar thing about this year's Pennsylvania crew is the fact that the eight is made up largely of new men and last year's freshmen, despite the fact that Pennsylvania lost only one or two veterans by graduation.

When the men reported for work on the river in the spring Coach Ward worked them so hard that four of the veterans gave up. The coach, who did not expect to get them back, but in men who could and would stand the pace, although inexperienced.

POLICE RECOVER LOST BOY

Kidnaper and His Victim Are Found in Vacant House in West Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, June 19.—Freddie Muth, the seven-year-old boy who was kidnaped from school last Tuesday, was found Monday afternoon in a vacant house and returned to his parents. John Joseph Kean, a member of a respectable New York family, one time bookkeeper of the Harlem bank, a stockbroker and more recently a real estate agent, is the abductor.

Replete with dramatic incidents throughout the climax of the abduction was sensational. The kidnaper was taken at the point of a pistol only after he had been fired upon and when he realized that escape was impossible. Kean gave as his reason for abducting the Muth boy that he needed money.

From the day of the kidnaping until the arrest Kean had kept the child in three vacant houses in West Philadelphia.

The first information that Kean and his captive were in the vicinity in which the arrest was eventually made came from Joseph Sager, a baker, who told a policeman that he had seen a man and boy answering the description of the pair in an oyster saloon.

Special officers began a search of all the vacant houses in the neighborhood and their search led them to the very house occupied by the abductor and the child. These dwellings were so constructed, however, that by means of a rear shed Kean was able to elude the police by climbing into the back windows of two adjoining houses, which were also unoccupied. A second investigation resulted in the recovery of the boy and the arrest of the kidnaper.

DIPLOMACY EXCHANGE.

Clearing House Principle to Be Tried in London.

PLAN FOR IMPROVING THE SERVICE

Bits of Information Gathered by American Representatives at European Capitals to Be Assembled and Cleared at British Capital—Secretary Root's Scheme to Save Time and Cable Tolls.

"Shirt sleeves diplomacy" is about to spring another open and above board combination on the diplomatic chess board; an example of the application of business principles to a calling which in bygone years was characterized by dark lantern methods, duplicity and intrigue; says the New York Post's Washington correspondent. "It is nothing less than an American diplomatic clearing house in London, under the supervision of the American ambassador to Great Britain. There it is proposed to assemble the important bits of information gathered by all the diplomatic and consular officials maintained in Europe by the United States. This knowledge will be classified and filed away, to be kept secret, unless and until some specified disposition of it is authorized by the secretary of state. It will be a duplication of so much of the department's records, as relates to Europe, and the purpose of having it assembled at the most important American diplomatic post abroad is to facilitate diplomatic action and save the expense of cable tolls on diffusing information sent to Washington from European courts and which the department wishes to place in the hands of its representatives at the other great capitals abroad.

This important departure in state department usage is to be made effective by a paragraph in the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill, which is now before the senate for action, as follows:

Clerks at the Embassy at London.—For two clerks at the embassy at Great Britain, one at the rate of $1,800 per annum and one at the rate of $1,200 per annum.

Adoption of such a plan will have the effect of making Ambassador Reid a sort of vice secretary of state. Even now his post is the most important of all the positions in the service. Other ambassadors hold the same rank, but with Mr. Reid the supervising head of an official bureau which will assimilate and dispense to all other ambassadors secret information which they will individually furnish to him his position will assume an added measure of responsibility.

Advocacy of a clearing house plan is but a development of Mr. Root's painstaking and gradual mastery of every detail of state department work. Many officials who enter the government service are satisfied to fall directly into line with the usage of the department and follow as closely as may be in the footsteps of their predecessors. Upon such basis is "red tape" founded—the desire to do what has always been done and to do nothing else for fear of setting a precedent. Mr. Root is not afflicted with any such fear. If he sees something which may be improved or simplified he doesn't hesitate to authorize the change. His cold, businesslike manner is rather liked by legislators at the capitol, who are sick and tired of the importunities of subordinate officials. They do not withhold admiration from a man who knows what he wants and goes after it as if he intended to get it, so the veterans have a large measure of confidence in Mr. Root's recommendations, and it is altogether likely they will think as he does about the clearing house plan and keep it in the bill.

An important provision which is not likely to stay in, however, is the one requiring that all necessary clerks at American embassies and legations shall be citizens of the United States. In its essence the provision is highly desirable and not subject to adverse comment. Men who have held high positions in the American diplomatic service agree that it is not to this country's interests to have foreigners sharing its diplomatic secrets, few as they are, and having access to the archives of our missions abroad. But the department officials know that such a rigid exclusion policy cannot be made effective within three weeks or, in other words, at the beginning of the next fiscal year, July 1, when all appropriation bills become effective. Granting that such a policy should be adopted, it is imperative that its application for a time at least shall be left to the secretary of state's discretion.

Doubtless there are many instances to support this view, but only one is needed to illustrate the situation. There is attached to the American legation in Switzerland a native of that country who has spent practically his entire adult life as a clerk in a confidential capacity. Diplomats who have held the post at Bern have testified to the unchanging fidelity, ability and interest of this Swiss member of the legation staff. He has never, however, become a citizen of the United States, and if he should for any sentimental reason refuse to swear away his birthright he would have to terminate his many years' service to the American government on July 1.

Of all the great supply bills of each session, the diplomatic and consular bill is perhaps the most attractive to the average legislator. It consists mainly of authorizations for appointments to the foreign service of the United States and is usually free of dry routine legislation, such as is inseparable from most appropriation bills. Then there is a certain luster attaching to the mere word "diplomacy" with its opportunities for patriotic service in foreign lands.

VESSEL DELAYED BY SHARKS

For Twenty Days Sailors Saw Nothing but the Monsters All About Them.

When a ship is brought to a standstill for 24 hours by a school of sharks that extends in all directions to the horizon and when the vessel sails for the next 20 days amid nothing but sharks it is said by old salts that it promises to be a good season for fishing; says the Philadelphia Inquirer.

This is the story brought to Philadelphia by the captain of the American ship Babcock, from San Francisco, with a cargo of scrap iron. In fact, the captain hints at a tragedy, for, according to his story, the myriad of sharks left him in pursuit of another vessel.

The Babcock sailed from San Francisco November 24. When in latitude 5.25 north, longitude 29 west, on December 10, the crew became worried at the scores of sharks which began following the vessel. During the night the crew heard an awful splashing about the ship and with the morning light came the revelation that the ocean, as far as the eye could see was covered with sharks.

The breeze fell off and what remained was not sufficient to send the vessel through the mass of fish. A strong wind came after the vessel had been stranded amid the sharks for 24 hours and slow headway was possible. The captain denies that the sharks tried to reach the deck by climbing upon the backs of one another.

For 20 days the sailors could see nothing but sharks. They were hundreds of miles from any land and were getting thoroughly frightened, when along comes another vessel. The sharks saw that the new comer had the most men aboard and all went off in her trail, so that when New Year's day dawned the crew of the Babcock again saw a clear ocean.

ANTHRACITE PRODUCTION.

The Tonnage Last Year Was Largest in the History of the Industry.

According to a preliminary report on the production of anthracite in 1905, made public by the United States geological survey to-day, the tonnage during that year was the largest in the history of the industry. The official explanation of this is that it partly is due to the experience of the trade in the preceding severe winters and partly by the fear of impending trouble in the anthracite region, which caused both dealers and consumers to lay in heavier stocks. In 1905, the production of anthracite amounted to 69,339,152 long tons, value $141,879,000. The average price of anthracite per ton was $2.25, the average number of men employed in the mines was 165,400 and the average days worked 215.

An increase in the shipment of the smaller sizes of coal is noted.

The disastrous effect of strikes on the trade is shown in the record for 1902, when the production of anthracite was only 39,940,710 long tons, worth $76,173,586. The average price of coal per ton in that year was $2.35, the average number of men employed was 148,141, and the average number of days worked was only 116.

ARIZONA'S FROZEN FOREST

Theory Which May Account for the Wonderful Petrifications.

In the long forgotten ages, perhaps before primeval man set foot upon the sands of earth, forests were growing in Arizona, just as in some parts they are growing to-day, says O. J. Muhlbacher, in the Arizona Magazine. But, by presumably volcanic action upon the earth's crust, they were laid prostrate, and over them swept the seething, rushing waters of an immense inland sea. Again, this region, sunk below the sea level, was upheaved so high the mighty waters found no footing. Again a partial depression made it a vast repository of rivers that drained the high levels, and these great trees were buried deep beneath the sand and silt, which time hardened to rock. But the upheaval of ages after reversed this process, and the outgoing waters in their maddened rush constantly bore away this earthen covering, returning to the world the long buried forests of the ancient ages. But lo! the sybaritic chemistry of nature, the alchemy of the ages, had transformed them into crystals of hardest stone, sparkling in variegated color tints. Thus, to-day, the "Petrified Forest" is one of the wonders of Arizona.

All the Aids to Comfort.
"Speaking of accommodating hotel clerks," remarked a Portland traveler, "the best I ever saw was in a town near Bangor. I reached the hotel late in the evening and was assigned to a pretty tidy looking room. Just before I retired I heard a scampering under the bed and looked under, expecting to see a burglar. Instead, I saw a couple of large rats just escaping into their hole. I dressed and went down to the office and put in a big kick. The clerk was as serene as a summer breeze.

CHILD'S SIMPLE FAITH.
Was Told God Would Take Care of Him and Was Not Afraid.

A friend told this story from real life the other day, writes Rev. C. B. Mitchell, in the New York Observer. "A wild storm was raging around a prairie home one night. The windows were blown in and no lights could be kept burning. It was only with difficulty that the doors could be braced against the blast. The father was absent from home, and the mother, grandmother and three children sat in the darkness in a room on the sheltered side of the house, fearing that at any moment the house might be swept from the foundations by the force of the wind.

"Suddenly 11-year-old Walter was missed. He had been holding a whispered conversation with his grandmother only a few moments before. Frantic with fear, the mother called him at the top of her voice, and, receiving no reply, started to grope her way through the darkness and confusion of the house, to find, if possible, the missing boy.

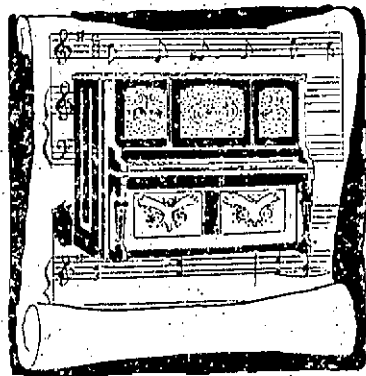

"She found him in his room—sound asleep! And when she asked how he could go to sleep when they were all in danger, he simply replied:

"Why, mamma, grandma told me God would take care of us, and I thought I might as well go to bed again."

"How many times have you 'also ran'—getting there a little too late—in answering want ads?"
